Womb as our First Ecology: A Living Gathering

Dear Participant,

Welcome. You are now part of Womb as our First Ecology: A Living Gathering. By stepping into this circle, you are not registering for a course. Instead, you are entering a living gathering of reflection, learning, healing and action. From May to November, we will meet across continents to explore the womb as the original environment that shapes how we relate to power, safety and belonging as well as how we related to ourselves and others.

As preparation for your contribution to self and others, begin to pay attention to your own ecology – natural rhythms, relationships that shapes you, and how our survival mode disconnects us from our cycles and intuition.

The same logic that disconnects us from our bodies disconnects us from land, power and resources. The same systems that control territories regulate our wombs. We are honoured to hold this space for you. We will be in touch again to help you prepare your inner ecology as well as provide dates, topics and facilitators of this sacred gathering.

Yours in gratitude

Dr Mmatshilo Motsei
